D

Dickens, Jr., Benjamin H. "Local Competition Prompts a Fresh Look at Strategic Planning." Recent acquisitions combined with FCC rulings mean that competition is slowly trickling down to the local loop. Before panic sets in, rural telcos should consider some of the strategies suggested here. (July/August, pg. 16).

Douglass, Karen A. "The Video Dialtone Opportunity." A new world of business markets has opened since the release of a recent FCC order allowing telcos to provide video-dialtone services. (March/April, pg. 31).

F

Feiter, Jim. "Fighting the Flood: A Small Town Struggles to Survive." The mighty Mississippi proved how it got its name—all summer long, while the Far West experienced drought, tor- rential rains in the Midwest rose the river's waters to flood levels, almost sweeping away little towns along its banks. This photographic essay brings you a bird's-eye view of this disaster and explains how one NTCA member maintained telephone service throughout the ordeal. (September/October, pg. 18).

Lehner, J. Christopher. "Will the 'Quiet Life' Suffer a Noisy Death? CAPs and the Specter of Local Service Competition." Just as long-distance fell open to competition in the 1980s, local exchange carriers face the prospect of losing their monopoly in the 1990s. Competitive local access and cellular technology providers have gone from spectators in the grandstand to players on the field. Will your customers become free agents shopping for service? (January/February, pg. 14).

—. "Panic Attack: Anatomy of a Media Scare." Even as the cellular industry scored unrivaled success in the marketplace, the media's fascination with tragedy unleashed emotional panic across the country. (March/April, pg. 24).

—. "From State of Survival to State-of-the Art: The Life and Times of Tri-County Telephone Membership Corporation." The same determination that helped this NTCA member in the Southeast get started is still working today to move the co-op forward into a diverse telecommunications provider for the next century. (November/December, pg. 14).

Long, Jill. "Congressional Address," from the 1993 NTCA Annual Meeting & EXPO in Las Vegas. (May/June, pg. 37).

M

Moffat, Dan. "Standing on Steady Ground." TAPPING YOUR MARKETS. (July/August, pg. 49).

Murphin, Tom. "SONET: The Link You've Been Looking For." A new optical standard will ensure a variety of transmission equipment can 'talk' to each other and also create an infrastructure to support broadband services. (July/August, pg. 38).

Riazzi, Patrick J. "Using VEBA Trusts

to Fund Retiree Health-Care Liabilities." Rising health-care costs and a new accounting standard put the pressure on small companies to look for ways to cover the cost of retiree benefits. A VEBA trust may be the answer. (July/August, pg. 36).

Thompson, Roger. "Workers' Compensation Costs Growing Out of Control." RISKY BUSINESS. (January/February, pg. 49).

W

Wacker, Tom. "REA Restructured: A Seasoned Program Strengthened." NTCA's government affairs representative discusses the year's events, explaining how the small telephone industry worked with the administration and Congress to revamp the Rural Electrification Administration telephone loan program into a viable funding source for the Information Age. (November/December, pg. 22).

Y

Yedwab, David. "800 Portability: The Benefits of Competition or Another Complication?" As of May 1, long-distance customers will be able to 'own' their 800 numbers, as the FCC-mandated 800-number portability goes into effect. The result may be some initial complications for local exchange carriers, but the new 'owners' of 800-EAT-FISH or 800-RENT-CAR are bound to be happier. (January/February, pg. 35).

Capital Access

Rural Telephone Finance Cooperative

Accessing the financial markets to provide our members with the lowest possible cost of capital is our number one goal.

RTFC is the member's connection to the capital markets. A progressive, responsive, not-for-profit cooperative, RTFC exists only to provide the nation's rural telcos with flexible, affordable financing.

To find out more about how RTFC can help your business when you need access to capital, call Charles Zinsner or Larry Zawalick at 800-346-7095.
